With a total of twenty Grand Prix events scheduled yet again, the 2018 FIM Motocross World Championship promises to be a campaign of strength and resilience as always. Who can beat the reigning Champions Antonio Cairoli, Pauls Jonass and Kiara Fontanesi?

The battle starts in Neuquén/ Argentina and will end six months later in Imola/Italy. The calendar includes the key European destinations, as well as Russia, two events in Indonesia and Turkey, which is making its comeback as a Motocross World Championship venue. The last Motocross World Championship event was held there in 2009 when Antonio Cairoli and Zach Osborne were victorious.

In the MXGP class, it will be interesting to see whether the experience, the maestria and regularity of Antonio Cairoli can hold off the speed and determination of last year's runner-up Jeffrey Herlings. Also pressing hard will be the respective 2015 and 2016 MXGP World Champions Romain Febvre and Tim Gajser. And then there are the likes of Gautier Paulin and Clément Desalle, who have never been crowned but cannot be ruled out. And what are we to think about Max Anstie, who put in some excellent rides at the end of the season with two dominant wins in the FIM Motocross of Nations? Not forgetting Rookies Jeremy Seewer, Benoit Paturel, Julien Lieber and Brian Bogers, who will also be looking to make their mark.

In the MX2 class, Pauls Jonass hired the services of four time World Champion Harry Everts to help him face down the competition. Jonass is now the target of the likes of Thomas Kjer Olsen, Thomas Covington, the Spanish "Boy Wonder" Jorge Prado and Hunter Lawrence. These are the leaders of a packed field of young and emerging talents that is preparing for battle in this hotly contested class.

In the Women's class, Kiara Fontanesi will have six events and twelve races to defend here crown against the likes of Courtney Duncan, Nancy Van de Ven and Larissa Papenmayer who is always within striking distance. However, Livia Lancelot will not be there. The two time World Champion has put an end to her career as a rider but will still be in the paddock as the MX2 team manager for Hunter Lawrence.

The profile and status of the FIM Motocross World Championships are growing with every passing year. The positive impact of Youthstream's ongoing commitment and investment is being felt far and wide and the rewards are there for all to see. Motocross continues to touch new and wider audiences both live and via its expanding TV coverage.

On behalf of the FIM, I would like to thank all the stakeholders for their efforts in bringing to life the 2018 FIM Motocross World Championship; Youthstream, the National Federations, the local organisers and their many volunteers, the manufacturers, the riders, the teams, the circuit owners, the media and finally but not least you, the Motocross fans who support the sport. Your passion is the fuel that enables the FIM Motocross World Championship engine to run and run.

Vito Ippolito
FIM President

Once again we begin a new season of MXGP and it gives me great pleasure to welcome everybody to the greatest MX series in the World bar none. Over the last number of years we have seen unbelievable growth in the Championship with a greater than ever interest from Media and industry plus the ever increasing number of national promoters looking to be considered for a place on the calendar. This has not been an overnight success, it has taken over twenty years to get to the position which we are in today, this growth and success is down to the total promotion and management by our partner Youthstream and we owe a great deal of gratitude to them for this elevated level that we have managed to reach together in 2018.

Of course we must also thank all the riders and teams that have travelled this journey with us, the professional Teams are a huge part of what we do together week in and week out. To the teams and riders we also owe a great deal for the constant support that they have given to us, thank you one and all.

As it's a new year and I want to express a very warm welcome to all the new and original people that will become part of the MXGP traveling circus this year. While we will take some time before we start in Europe it's always great to see the new talent that flows from the European Motocross Championship to the World Championship as it has been a huge success for the MXGP series no question and without doubt.

For 2018 I want to express a great deal of gratitude to the many volunteers that descend to each round of the Championship worldwide, full of commitment and dedication to support the sport that they love and care about while fulfilling a dream to be close to the greatest stars of our sport. Wishing to all that make it happen a great year no matter what corner of the world you are from or what part you play in this, the best MX series on our planet.

Tony Skillington
FIM/CMS Director

Dear MXGP Friends,

MXGP is growing each year and 2017 was again no exception. MXGP was followed by a huge number of fans via the worldwide TV coverage and in 2017 MXGP was televised on many prestigious local TV broadcasters along with Eurosport and MotorsTV for Europe, CBS Sports Network for USA and Canada, FOX Sports for Latin America, Asia and Oceania and BeIN for the Middle East and Africa for a total of almost 7,000 hours in 210 different countries around the world.

MXGP's presence on the various social network platforms is also attracting a lot of interest from young fans from all over the world, we are proud to have 2,140,000 'likes' on MXGP's Facebook page in November 2017, 57,000 followers on Twitter, 479,000 followers on Instagram and 97,000 YouTube MXGP channel subscribers.

As people are beginning to understand the practicality of online TV MXGP-TV.com is becoming more and more popular with 1,355,000 views. On top of the Sundays' action, since a few years MXGP-TV provides all of Saturday's activities live, including the MXGP and MX2 qualifying races and European Championship races, and every year MXGP-TV endeavors to improve its content.

MXGP MAG is also growing in importance, since its first release in September 2013 it has had more than 1,080,800 lifetime reads, with the most followers coming from Italy, USA and UK (respectively).

The MXGP3 Official Motocross videogame, which was released at the end of May 2017, has sold more than 1.2 million copies worldwide, creating interest from young people who would otherwise not be linked to Motocross but thanks to the videogame they fall in love with the sport and start following it.

2,214 journalists and photographers covered the 2017 MXGP season with an average of 111 media representatives attending each event and 59 being permanently accredited. MXGP received 665,000 spectators to its events during the 2017 season (+12.8% compared to 2016), with a massive 72,000 spectators attending the 2017 Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations presented by Fiat Professional that was held in Matterley Basin, UK.

As a result of this impressive growth in interest, MXGP is becoming more and more popular and requests are coming in for more events in more countries all over the world. The 2018 FIM Motocross World Championship calendar is possibly the best in the history of Motocross; for the first time, there will be 20 events starting on the first weekend of March and ending the last weekend of September. The calendar is proof of MXGP's good health because we see requests of organizing an MXGP event are increasing each year and the quality of the organization is also steadily improving.

The inclusion of the European Championship during the MXGP race weekend is bearing its fruit with young talented riders being able to show their capabilities in a professional atmosphere. We are seeing riders from a very young age being taken into experienced teams and nurtured into professional racing. Youth is very important to Youthstream and that is why we continue our support for the MXGP Academy and other youth organizations to ensure the education and passion of youth in Motocross.

In cooperation with the FIM, FIM-Europe, Youthstream, organizers, manufactures, teams, riders, media, sponsors and with the great support received from the MXGP fans today MXGP has become the most popular off-road motorcycle championship in the world. Youthstream would like to thank all these indispensable partners who believe in MXGP and support its growth.

Giuseppe Luongo
President of Youthstream Group

NO MORE SCREWIN' AROUND

Traditional visors are firmly attached with screws. The 2018 Fox V3 helmet replaces screws with the all new, exclusive Magnetic Visor Release System' designed to resist roost, but release in a crash. MVRS' is a completely new approach to managing rotational forces that is strong enough to be there when you need it, smart enough to release when you don't.

FROM OUR HANDS TO YOURS
OF AMERICAN MADE POWER
1973 was about revolutionary firsts. Zeppelin, Floyd and the Stones were setting the world ablaze. We tasted our first Lite beer, rode our first Jet Ski, and Don Emler lit the torch sparking one of the most influential brands in motorcycle history.
45 years later the song remains the same. FMF still engineers and builds everything by hand, from the ground up in the USA. As long as you dream of flying higher and going faster, we will continue to provide the power to get you there.

SO CALIF.

MXGP OF PATAGONIA - ARGENTINA, NEUQUÉN

MARCH 4

ROAD DIRECTIONS

By car:

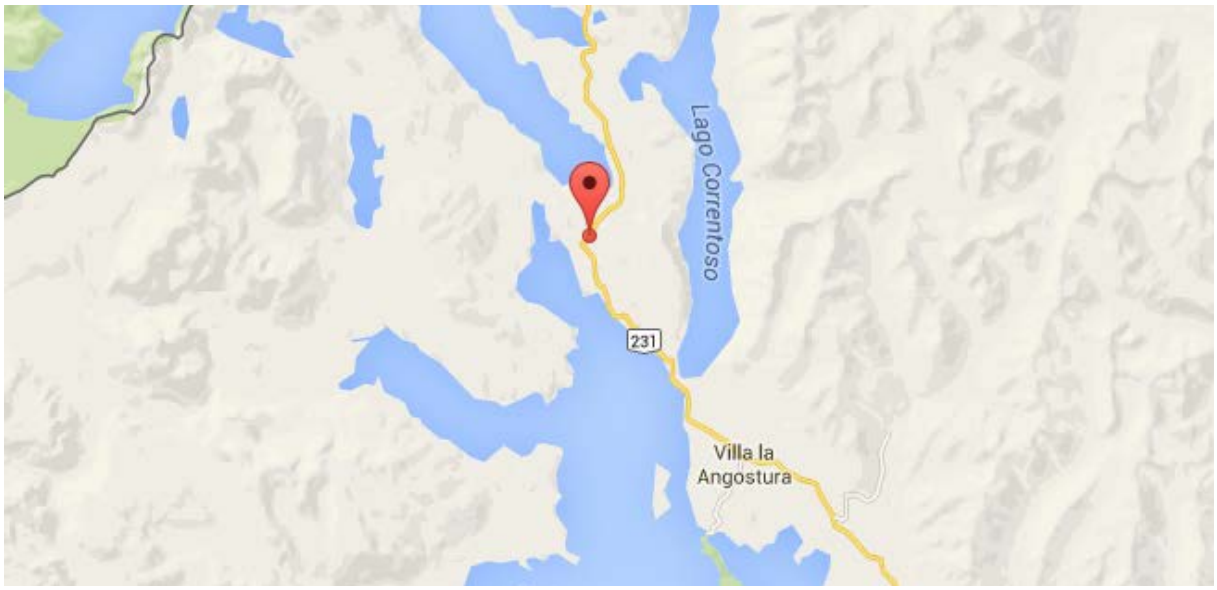

From Bariloche you will drive towards the north and about 20 kms away you will find the route to Villa La Angostura which is 70 kms away. It is all paved and it has a beautiful overlook of all the coast line of Nahuel Huapi Lake.
From the North you can get here along the Seven Lakes Route, which you can take in San Martin de los Andes. You will have a 90 kms drive while observing the mountain range lakes with their awesome sights.

Frontier passages:
Cardenal Samoré Passage (former Puyehue)

It is 1314 AMSL (42° 29' 07" South Latitude – 70° 25' 91" West Longitude) and it is open all year long. It is considered the second most important in the country because it has direct communication with Puerto Montt (220 kms away) and Osorno (117 kms away) along the Chilean Austral Motorway and with all the other parts of the Chilean Patagonia.

The road is paved in almost all its stretches, you must be careful in the stretches which are still being built. It is an important commercial passage, which makes the traffic quite thick. The road is of rubble over National Route 231, it is averagely 7 metres wide and it is in good conditions. The distance to the limit is 4 kms.5

HISTORY

HISTORY OF THE FIM MOTOCROSS WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP

The history of Motocross begins in the early 20th century when the first events took place in Great Britain, specifically during the 1920s when the first competitions known as "scrambles" were held. Once the Second World War ended, the sport started to grow from a national to an international level with the very first team event known as Motocross des Nations, racing with 500cc machines and taking place in 1947 in the Netherlands. Although the Belgian rider Auguste Mingels was faster, the team classification prevailed and Great Britain claimed the first Trophy. From then on this special event was held regularly every year, and mostly dominated by the British team until the end of the 1960s. The Trophée des Nations, team event for 250cc machines, was added in 1961, and the Coupe des Nations (for teams with 125cc motorcycles) in 1981. In 1984, the rules were changed: the three classes would race together, each time entering three riders. Currently America is the most successful Nation in this event which they have won 20 times.

Back in the 50s, on the individual level, Motocross started to grow fast, with many events held in various countries. This led the FIM to introduce the first European Championship in 1952. That maiden series was open to 500cc motorcycles and the first winner was Belgian Victor Leloup onboard an FN machine. He was followed by August Mingels in '53 and '54, before British riders John Draper and Leslie Archer took over. But another country was also reaching the top in Motocross – individual and team – in those days, beside Great Britain and Belgium, that country was Sweden.

From European to World Championship. Joel Robert (250cc) and Roger De Coster (500cc) make their name.

After five years of European Championship, Motocross took an important step forward with the series being promoted to the World Championship status in 1957 – winner was Swedish Bill Nilsson onboard an AJS machine. Still in 1957 the first European Cup for 250cc motorcycles was created to match the popularity of this upcoming discipline. This Cup would last only two years to be promoted to the European Championship status in 1959. Three years later in 1962, the 250cc class had its first World Championship with the eventual winner being legendary Husqvarna mounted Torsten Hallman from Sweden. The Swedish won the Title for two consecutive years until upcoming talent Joel Robert from Belgium steered his CZ to victory collecting the first of six titles - a record which would remain unbeaten until 2002.

Robert would win another five 250cc World Titles from 1968 until 1972, the year of birth of his countryman Stefan Everts, the man who will break all the records 30 years later.

As Japanese manufacturers entered the series in the late 60s, Joel Robert was the first World Championship winner onboard such a machine as he steered the Suzuki to victory in the 250cc class in 1970.

One year later Suzuki would win another 250cc World Title with Robert but success came also in the 500cc class. Now a myth in the sport, in 1971 Roger De Coster and Suzuki won their first 500cc Championship which was also the first of five World Titles for De Coster – all in the 500cc class.

1973-1990

The arrival of the 125cc World Championship. Eric Geboers and Jean Michel Bayle great ambassadors of Motocross.

In 1973 another class, the 125cc, had its dedicated European Championship, which was won for two consecutive years by Belgian André Malherbe on a Zundapp. In 1975 it became a World Championship and Gaston Rahier won the Title straight away onboard a Suzuki, the first manufacturer to ever claim a Title in all three classes.

Malherbe would exploit his early 125cc experience to collect the 500cc World Title in 1980 and 1981 as Belgium was shaping up like the most talented country for Motocross. In 1975 another Belgian, Harry Everts, took his first 250cc World Title. He will win another three Championships in his career before retiring and raising his child Stefan.

In 1982 another star entered the World Motocross Championship with Eric Geboers winning the 125cc Championship after Everts had dominated it for three consecutive years – before Everts, Japanese Akira Watanabe took the 125cc crown in 1978. Geboers would storm through the field to remarkably win all three World Titles 125cc, 250cc and 500cc granting him the nickname of Mr. 875, the sum of 125, 250 and 500. Basically Eric Geboers was the first man to ever win one World Title in each category.

Georges Jobe and Dave Thorpe would also write their names in the record books of the World Champions in these years, while exceptional young guns would come up to establish the base of the next decades of World Motocross.

French Jean Michel Bayle and Italian Alex Puzar won their first titles in 1988 and in 1990 respectively. As Puzar went on for more success in the series, Bayle first moved to Supercross, then to Road Racing collecting strong results and becoming a legend for his incredible talent in motorsports.

1991-2000

New generation four stroke machines enter and win World Titles. Stefan Everts begins his winning streak.

This decade of World Motocross started with the Title of Stefan Everts, currently the most successful Motocross rider ever with 10 World Titles and 101 GP wins to his credit. Onboard a Suzuki, Everts – son of Harry Everts - became World Champion in the 125cc class in 1991 to be succeeded by Greg Albertijn in 1992 as the latter became the first South African to collect a World Title in Motocross.

Albertijn would win other two World Titles in the 250cc class as the 125cc class saw Italian Alessio "Chicco" Chiodi win the Championship for three consecutive years from 1997 until 1999.

Sebastien Tortelli, another of Everts' main rivals throughout his career together with Albertijn, also passed by the 125cc World Championship, which he won in 1996, before winning in 250cc in 1998.

French countryman Frederic Bolley succeeded to Tortelli in 1999 and 2000 winning two consecutive 250cc Titles.

With new generation four stroke machines becoming popular in the GP campaign in 1999 came the first World Title. Yamaha mounted Andrea Bartolini was the first rider to win a Championship with such a machine beating Joel Smets, the 500cc Title winner in the previous two years and also in 2000.

2001-2006

Youthstream celebrates Stefan Everts and the new generation during the years of records. Women and Veterans racing dedicated series.

The last years have seen Motocross develop very quickly courtesy of the professional work of new promoter Youthstream headed by President Giuseppe Luongo, a man who had been involved in Motocross since 1983. Youthstream took the World Motocross Championships and the Motocross of Nations to the next level as the series increased the visits overseas and benefitted from a strong TV and media coverage. Nowadays the riders involved in the Championships come from more than 30 different nations, the races are watched onsite by more than half a million spectators, as the number of TV viewers overtakes one billion.

In 2004 the classes were renamed. The 125cc was called MX2 and is now hosting mainly 250cc four stroke bikes. The 250cc class was renamed MX1 hosting 450cc four stroke machines as the former 500cc class became an open class, the MX3.

The professional set up was matched by excellent racing and new talents going through the ranks such as Steve Ramon, Ben Townley, Antonio "Tony" Cairoli, Tyla Rattray, Tommy Searle just to name a few.

Though this decade will be remembered for the breakthrough of Stefan Everts. The Belgian went on to take his 10th World Title and his 101st GP victory in 2006, his last year of professional racing before retiring and becoming Team Manager for the factory KTM Motocross Team. Everts set the records, which are now the ultimate challenge of the whole younger generations of professional Motocross racers.

2007-2016

The youngsters leave their mark on the FIM Motocross World Championship. Philippaerts, Cairoli, Desalle, Musquin, Roczen, Herlings, Febvre, Gajser and many more set the Championship on fire.

These years the young guns of the FIM Motocross World Championship have established their authority on the series.

Ramon succeeded to Everts in the MX1 series in 2007 after the season's dominator Coppins was taken out by a shoulder injury. Italian Cairoli took back the MX2 Title, as 2006 World Champion Pourcel was unable to defend the crown due to an up and down season which ended in a severe back injury.

After two years of team management, Stefan Everts celebrated the first World Title with Tyla Rattray winning the MX2 World Championship in 2008. That was also the year David Philippaerts won his maiden World Title in the MX1 despite it being only his second year in contention.

Year by year the level and speed that Grand Prix riders ride at progresses and now the most skilled ones are aiming to beat the older generations' records. In 2010 Cairoli decided to ride the revolutionary KTM 350cc on which the Italian claimed his fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth World Titles in six consecutive years. The Italian is breaking all the records, and continues to do so as he has won seventy-two Grand Prix's and sits second on the list of most Grand Prix wins, twenty nine behind 'The King' Stefan Everts.

In the MX2, young German talent Ken Roczen joined KTM and obtained his maiden World Title in 2011 in front of his home crowd in Gaildorf, Germany. The talented German also wrote his name in the motocross history of his country before moving to the USA to live his American dream. With Roczen gone, 2012 and 13 have been dominated by Dutch phenomenon Jeffrey Herlings. At the ripe age of eighteen, Herlings has already added two FIM MX2 World Titles to his list of career achievements, which he obtained with two near perfect seasons. 2014 saw Herlings line-up for his third consecutive MX2 World Title with his main goal being to win every Grand Prix.

In 2014 Red Bull KTM Factory Racing's Antonio Cairoli continued to chip away at Stefan Everts ten FIM Motocross World Championship titles taking title number eight in Trindade, Brazil. Jeremy Van Horebeek also stamped his name on the championship as the most consistent rider in the MXGP class banking eleven consecutive podium finishes. After missing the podium at round 13 in Finland, the Belgian bounced back at round 14 in the Czech Republic to take home his first ever MXGP class win. The twenty-four year old finished the season as the vice MXGP world champion.

While the racing in 2014 was amazing, all attention had already turned to 2015 with the championship expected to blow all other seasons out of the water. In 2015 MXGP's talent pool is deeper than ever especially with the arrival of American legend, multi-time AMA supercross and motocross champion, Ryan Villopoto. Villopoto is the first American with a résumé as rich as his to make the transition from the AMA series' to the FIM Motocross World Championship.

2014 produced one of the best seasons of MX2 racing the championship is yet to witness, starting with young French star Dylan Ferrandis' win of one race at round one in Qatar. The on-watchers were shocked, to say the least, that the usual dominating force Jeffrey Herlings appeared weaker than he had over the previous two seasons. The Dutch sensation Herlings then went on to admit he was recovering from a leg injury.

After not getting off to the greatest of starts, which allowed the likes of Arnaud Tonus to claim his first ever MX2 round win and Glenn Coldenhoff to take his first ever race win, things went from bad to worst for the two-time FIM MX2 World Champ Herlings when he broke his femur racing for charity right on the heels of wrapping up his third consecutive FIM MX2 World Championship. With Herlings out MX2 became 100% unpredictable, each race was intense from start to finish and each first time win for riders such as Jordi Tixier, Romain Febvre, Max Anstie and Tim Gajser was hard fought and earned.

In a heroic effort to clinch the title despite suffering from an unhealed broken femur, Herlings who had won twelve of the thirteen Grand Prix he contested was forced to settle for second with only four valuable points separating himself and his Red Bull KTM Factory Racing teammate Jordi Tixier. Tixier on the other hand used his 'never give up' attitude to silence his critics, bounce back from a dip and win his first ever FIM Motocross World Championship in impressive style.

It was expected to be epic and the 2015 FIM Motocross World Championship didn't fail to deliver, in terms of being the best season of racing ever.

Heading into round one, the MXGP of Qatar, all eyes were on Ryan Villopoto and the defending champ Antonio Cairoli. No one expected that neither Villopoto nor Cairoli would finish off the podium, and that is exactly what happened. Red Bull IceOne Husqvarna Factory Racing's Max Nagl was the early season dominator, he won both races in Qatar, had a shocker in Thailand but bounced back to finish inside the top two at the following four rounds. Nagl took the red plate at the MXGP of Trentino in Pietramurata, Italy, and held onto it for 6 rounds before breaking his ankle in the qualifying heat at round ten of the championship, his home grand prix, the MXGP of Germany. After Nagl's disappointment in Thailand, it was the Rockstar Energy Suzuki World MXGP's Clement Desalle who claimed the red plate and held it for three rounds before handing it over to Nagl. Desalle's season also came to an end early on when he dislocated his shoulder at round eight, the MXGP of France, which later required surgery. With both Nagl and Desalle on the sidelines, the breakout star of 2015, Yamaha Factory Racing Yamalube's Romain Febvre took the red plate for the first time in his career.

The series was fickle, but it was apparent that the rookie Romain Febvre was something special. The young Frenchman, youngest in the class to be precise, small in stature but with the potentially the greatest determination, clinched the red plate with both hands. He was crowned the 2015 FIM Motocross World Champion in the premier class MXGP with the statistics proving he is the worthy champion. The '461', Febvre's number, led the most laps, 190 compared to Nagl's 114. He won 15 races, 8 grand prix' and finished on the podium 13 times in succession. Febvre wrapped up the championship at the sixteenth round of eighteen, in Assen, The Netherlands and finally won it by 143 points over fellow Frenchman, Team HRC's Gautier Paulin. Paulin edged out his teammate Evgeny Bobryshev, from Russia, by 25 points. The Team HRC boys rounded off the podium in 2015.

Meanwhile in MX2, it was another dramatic year for the former two-times MX2 World Champion, Jeffrey Herlings. The Dutch sensation had some gnarly crashes throughout the season, which saw him miss round ten with a broken clavical and round twelve with a lacerated finger. The final time Herlings would line up in 2015 was at round thirteen, MXGP of The Czech Republic, where he broke his hip in qualifying and ended his season.

Despite the hardship of the number '84', Herlings, he led the most laps, had the most race wins and held the red plate for the first 13 rounds of the championship. Due to his injury, the MX2 title was blown open, which saw the rise of Red Bull KTM Factory Racing's Pauls Jonass, Honda Gariboldi's young gun Tim Gajser, Monster Energy DRT Kawasaki's Max Anstie and Standing Construct Yamaha Yamalube's Valentin Guillod.

The fight was fierce. Max Anstie was the first rider to take a stand. The Brit took a double victory at the MXGP of Latvia and then again at the MXGP rounds of Belgium and Lombardia. He finished the season second on the leader board in terms of laps led, 147, behind Herlings who led 198 laps. Although Anstie had the speed, he didn't have the consistency, especially that of Pauls Jonass, who held the red plate briefly despite that fact he hadn't ever won a race.

Jonass did manage to reach that milestone when he won his first ever MX2 race in Mexico, but by then Tim Gajser already had the red plate and was putting in some consistent results. Nearing the end of the season, the pressure of potentially being crowned the 2015 FIM Motocross MX2 World Champion was starting to get to Jonass and Anstie. Both riders had some big crashes, which saw them throw away valuable points.

Gajser, on the other hand was riding solid. He took a surprise victory in the sand of Assen at MXGP of The Netherlands which made him top the charts as the rider with the most MX2 grand prix overalls, 5 compared to Herlings' 4 and Guillod's 3. A second place behind American Thomas Covington, who took his maiden MX2 race and grand prix win in Mexico, saw the Slovenian stretch his points lead ever so slightly.

The championship ended up going down to the wire with Gajser clinching the title in the final race of the season at the Monster Energy MXGP of The USA in Glen Helen. Jonass was forced to be content with second while Anstie rounded off the podium in third.

With the newly crowned and unexpected MX2 champion of Tim Gajser joining the MXGP class, and the return of Jeffrey Herlings to MX2 racing, 2016 was set to be yet another season of extraordinary competition.

The 2015 MXGP World champion Romain Febvre and the 2015 MX2 champion Tim Gajser started the championship chase early at Qatar. To the surprise of many, Honda Gariboldi's Gajser outperformed HRC Honda's Evgeny Bobryshev and reigning champion Febvre.

Gajser made it clear he was a title contender as a rookie but Romain Febvre answered by winning the following two rounds, capturing the red plate. Febvre held the points lead until Teutschenthal, where a tip over in the first moto gave the 243 Honda rider, Gajser, the edge he needed. Multi-time champion Antonio Cairoli showed he was ready to compete after winning his first GP in nearly a year.

The MXGP of Great Britain was an important point in the championship where the Yamaha rider of Febvre went down hard. Febvre was out of contention for two rounds allowing the points lead of Gajser to grow.

Gajser rode consistent until Assen, where the conditions got the best of him. But with Febvre losing out on points the battle between 2nd and 3rd in the championship tightened.

Afterwards, the championship headed to America. At the Monster Energy MXGP of Americas in Charlotte, North Carolina, Gajser was crowned FIM MXGP World Champion, only one year after winning the MX2 championship. The season came to an end at Glen Helen where the American Eli Tomac won his second GP in a row. It was KTM's Antonio Cairoli who finished the season 2nd followed by Husqvarna's Max Nagl.

The first round of MX2 in Qatar started strong for title hopeful Dylan Ferrandis. Herlings claimed the first victory of the year going 1-1 with Ferrandis on his heals in both motos.

Round 2 in Thailand saw the Kawasaki rider of Ferrandis dislocate his shoulder after going down in qualifying. Herlings capitalized and rode to another 1-1 finish. In moto 2 it was the hard charging Husqvarna rider Max Anstie finishing 2nd after crashing hard earlier in the day.

With Ferrandis injured Herlings continued his winning form going undefeated in his home race of Valkenswaard marking his 50th GP win. He continued to be undefeated the following 4 rounds. However, the MXGP of Trentino saw the number 4 of Ferrandis ready to challenge after returning to racing only one week before. After a hard fought battle Ferrandis handed Herlings his first loss of the year in moto 1. Seemingly unfazed the number 84 KTM of Herlings claimed the overall after a going 2-1 on the day and then won four more rounds before breaking his collar bone.

After missing the MXGPs' of Loket, Belgium, and Switzerland due to his injury, Herlings finished the season strong to claim the FIM MX2 world championship at the first ever Monster Energy MXGP of Americas held on the dirt track of Charlotte Motor Speedway. Jeremy Seewer's consistent season aboard his Suzuki secured him a well earned 2nd overall in the championship. Third place wasn't decided until the final round at Monster Energy MXGP of USA, where Yamaha's Benoit Paturel edged out the Englishman of Max Anstie.

In 2017 the season started out at the all familiar circuit of Qatar, but there were some notable changes coming into the first few rounds of the new MXGP season. The biggest and most anticipated change was that of the 2016 FIM MX2 World Champion, Red Bull KTM Factory Racing's Jeffrey Herlings moving up into the premier MXGP class. Aside from Herlings joining the field, Red Bull KTM Factory Racing's Antonio Cairoli would start the season fully fit and healthy against a borage of competitors including the reigning FIM World Champion, Team HRC's Tim Gajser and 2015 Champion Romain Febvre.

When the gate dropped on the new mesh starting grid in Qatar Cairoli made it clear he was back to his winning ways as he took the first overall of the 2017 season all whilst battling with Gajser. For Jeffrey Herlings the opening round and the several following where a challenge while he healed from an off season injury along with the realization that he had underestimated the depth and talent of the MXGP field.

From Argentina to Mexico it was Gajser who dominantly claimed the top step of the podium and captured the red plate away from Cairoli. However the success of Gajser was soon plagued by mistakes and injury. All the while Cairoli stayed consistent in his performance eventually regaining the red plate.

A notable point of the 2017 season was that of the MXGP of Europe in Valkenswaard, Netherlands. While it was Rockstar Energy Husqvarna Factory Racing's Gautier Paulin who took the overall win, much of the attention was instead on the resurgence of Jeffrey Herlings whom was finally starting to show the speed many assumed he was capable of as he finished 2nd.

One round later, at the MXGP of Latvia in Kegums, Herlings fans rejoiced as Jeffrey went on to take double victories for the overall win, the first of his MXGP career. While Herlings was on the rise it was the beginning of the issues for Gajser as he would suffer injury in a hard crash through the roller section. A stop later in Germany only added insult to the injury when Gajser cross rutted on a high speed section of the track resulting in a DNF.

While Gajser healed, a new winner in 2017 surfaced by the likes of Monster Energy Kawasaki's Clement Desalle. The Belgian took the MXGP of France overall by one point over Cairoli and quickly proved at the next stop, the MXGP of Russia, that it was no fluke as he again claimed an overall win.

The season then became a battle of giants between Antonio Cairoli and Jeffrey Herlings. The first epic battle came at the Fiat Professional FULLBACK MXGP of Lombardia where a game of cat and mouse ended in favor of Cairoli. 2 stops later at the MXGP of Belgium the duo again battled head to head but the determined Herlings topped the veteran of Cairoli.

Herlings would also win the MXGP of Switzerland Presented by iXS cutting down Cairoli's points lead in the process. When the series headed to Sweden misfortune struck Herlings as he had a mechanical issue and lost points back to Cairoli. What was too little too late for Herlings provided to be just what the doctor ordered for Cairoli who went on to claim his 9th FIM Motocross World Championship at the MXGP of The Netherlands taking place in Assen.

In the MX2 category for 2017 Red Bull KTM Factory Racing's Pauls Jonass returned from injury as the lead KTM MX2 rider with Herlings now aboard the 450 machine. Lining up alongside Jonass was a long list of competitors with massive talent from American Rockstar Energy Husqvarna Factory Racing's Thomas Covington and Switzerland native and Suzuki World MX2's Jeremy Seewer to young guns previously from the EMX250 category like Monster Energy DRT Kawasaki's Darian Sanayei or Rockstar Energy Husqvarna Factory Racing's Thomas Kjer Olsen.

To start the season Jonass won in Qatar while Seewer took the Indonesian victory. While the third round in Argentina would go to Jonass, his young teammate and MX2 rookie Jorge Prado Garcia put up a fight. When the series headed to Mexico the American Thomas Covington put together the best weekend for the win similar to 2016.

From Mexico the series headed to Europe and took first to the MXGP of Trentino where a new face stood on the top step of the podium, the Spaniard Jorge Prado. Jonass would win next at Valkenswaard for the MXGP of Europe before heading to his home GP, the MXGP of Latvia. While hopes were high for Jonass to win at home the cards instead fell in favor of the EMX250 recruit and MX2 rookie Thomas Kjer Olsen.

After Latvia Jonass gained traction and won 3 of the next six but Seewer did the same. As the title chase was close Jorge Prado claimed his 2nd overall of his career in Belgium. Then Switzerland saw another career milestone as Kemea Yamaha Official MX Team's Benoit Paturel took the win ahead of Seewer and Jonass.

As the season headed towards a conclusion Jonass managed his points lead well as Seewer played catch-up. In the end the final round at Pays de Montbéliard decided the championship to the favor of Jonass.

HISTORY

MONSTER ENERGY FIM MOTOCROSS OF NATIONS 71 YEARS OF HISTORY

FIRST YEARS: DOMINANCE OF THE BRITISH TEAM

Motocross, known as "scramble" when it was "invented" in the 20s, developed quickly in the 30s. After the war, the FIM elevated this sport at international level by giving birth to the Motocross des Nations (official title in French, run with 500cc motorcycles), a classic event which has been run annually ever since.

The inaugural event was held near The Hague, in the Netherlands, on 20 July 1947. Three nations were invited – the Netherlands, Belgium and Great Britain. The Belgian rider Auguste Mingels was the fastest, but the A team of Great Britain with Bill Nicholson (BSA), Fred Rist (BSA) and Bob Ray (Ariel) won the first team title, ahead of the Belgian "B" squad.

The second "Nations" contest took place in August 1948 in La Fraineuse, close to the Belgian city of Spa. National federations of France, Sweden and Luxembourg were also invited for an event dominated by the local team. Nic Jansen, Marcel Cox and Andre Milhoux took first, second and fifth places, clinching the first Trophy for Belgium.

At the end of August 1949 it was the turn of Great Britain to host the final competition of the decade at Brands Hatch. Great Britain won the competition for the second time, thus keeping the Cup indefinitely. The ACU then donated another Cup for the competition's winning team. The Vice-President of the FIM International Sporting Commission Peter Chamberlain had always been a strong supporter of Motocross, and worked a great deal on behalf of the national teams' competition. After he passed away in 1954, the cup was officially named after him.

In the 50s, the British dominance was quite strong: seven victories out of 10 in the Motocross des Nations before 1960. The only exceptions were the victories of Belgium in 1951 and Sweden in 1955 and 1958.

A competition for 250cc machines, named the Trophée des Nations, was created by the FIM as from the 1961 season. Victories in the first years were clinched by the Swedes after two initial successes for Great Britain. In the 500cc team event Great Britain lost against Sweden in 1961/62, but then won five years in a row, reaching the number of 14 victories in 20 years, however their last win was in 1967 and it would take 27 years before they won again.

HARD FIGHTS

In Kishinev – then in the Soviet Union – the Russian team took the Chamberlain Trophy for the first time. Then Belgium finally won again the Trophy in Farleigh Castle (1969) after chasing after it for 18 years, with legendary names such as Roger de Coster, Joel Robert and Sylvain Geboers.

The 70s saw a big change at the mechanical level, with the massive arrival of Japanese manufacturers. Suzuki started first, quickly followed by Yamaha, Honda and Kawasaki. The first years of the decade were shared between Sweden and Belgium. In Sweden 1974, behind the local team, a US team appeared for the first time on the rostrum, in the second place, composed of Jim Pomeroy (Bultaco), Brad Lackey (Husqvarna), Marty Tripes (Husqvarna) and Jimmy Weinert (Kawasaki), just ahead of the Russian squad including 250cc World Champion Guennady Moisseev. In 1975 in Czechoslovakia, the local team finished ahead of Belgium – despite the presence of three World Champions, Roger de Coster, Harry Everts and Gaston Rahier - and Great Britain. Two wins of the Belgian team preceded the second victory of a Russian team, still with Guennady Moisseev.

In the Trophée des Nations contest, Belgium conquered all titles except one (Russia in 1979) as of 1969 until 1980. In the Motocross des Nations Belgium again won two titles (79, 80) before the American domination became effective. Having missed both events in the two previous years, the American team arrived at Lommel in Belgium in September 1981 for the Trophée des Nations with four Honda riders managed by former World Champion Roger de Coster. Danny Laporte, Chuck Sun, Johnny O'Mara and Donnie Hansen destroyed the opposition, and one week later won again in the Motocross des Nations in Bielstein, Germany. Changes were made in the team from one year to the next, but it did not change anything. The American field was full of top riders during the 80s, and De Coster's team got eight victories (four in each team competition) in four years.

In 1980 the FIM decided to introduce a third Motocross team contest with 125cc motorcycles: the Coupe des Nations. The Italian team led by Michele Rinaldi won the first two titles, followed by Belgium (with Eric Geboers) and the Netherlands (with Kees Van der Ven and John Van de Berk).

NEW FORMAT

In 1985 a new format combining all three classes in a single Motocross des Nations was introduced by the FIM, gathering all three classes (125cc, 250cc and 500cc) with one rider in each class and three races per event: 125/500, 125/250, 250/500.

Nothing could stop the Americans though - this would only happen in 1994, after 17 consecutive victories (13 in the Motocross des Nations, and the last four of the Trophée des Nations), against...Great Britain, in Roggenburg, Switzerland.

Their teams always integrated world-recognized top riders. Danny "Magoo" Chandler won all four heats in the team contests in 1982, but perhaps the greatest win of all came at Maggiora in 1986 when America's trio of David Bailey, Ricky Johnson and Johnny O'Mara went through all three heats unbeaten by the rest of the world.

After Great Britain's win in 1994, it was the turn of Belgium to be back at the top of the competition in 1995 with Stefan Everts, Joel Smets and Marnicq Bervoets. But the Americans were still there. In '96 in Jerez, the team driven by multi-champion Jeremy McGrath beat the French and Belgian teams. Then, the US team would be off the rostrum for three consecutive years, which saw two Belgian wins and the first crown for Italy (with World Champions Andrea Bartolini and Alessio Chiodi, and also Claudio Federici), in 1999 in Brazil, ahead of France and Belgium. Once again the Americans were back in 2000 in St Jean d'Angély, led by their new top rider Ricky Carmichael. In Namur 2001, it was finally the turn of the French team to clinch their first victory (with David Vuillemin, Yves Demaria and Luigi Séguy), beating the Belgians on their home track. Italy won a perturbed 2002 edition, and Belgium - still with the record holder in individual World titles Stefan Everts - won the 2003 and 2004 contest, before the US comeback in the last five editions, James Stewart having replaced Carmichael as the team's top rider in 2006. Carmichael was back in 2007, celebrating his last Motocross appearance in Budds Creek while Stewart was part of the 2008 winning team.

In 2009 the event came back to Italy after an absence of 23 years, this time in Franciacorta. The American Team got the Trophy again but failed in repeating their countrymen's performance in 1986 at Maggiora. The trio made of Ryan Dungey, Jake Weimer and Ivan Tedesco struggled against nations such as France, Belgium and Italy. Eventually USA won from France and Belgium while a crash of Italy's top rider and multi-time World Champion Antonio Cairoli in heat three ended the team's hopes of victory.

In 2010 the FIM Motocross of Nations was back in the USA where the home riders (Team USA) obtained their 21st Chamberlain Trophy in Lakewood, Denver, thanks to the performance of Ryan Dungey, Trey Canard and Andrew Short. The German team, who was leading the standings after race two thanks to the superb racing of youngster Ken Roczen and Max Nagl, were finally second followed by the Belgian team in third.

The following year it was a turning point for the event, as Monster Energy played an important role and became the title sponsor of the 2011 FIM Motocross of Nations. Saint Jean d'Angely in France was the chosen scenario for the 65th edition of the MXoN and the French fans witnessed a dramatic ending. The French team got into the final heat leading the classification with nine points advantage over team USA, but in the decisive heat Pourcel ended up with an unfortunate DNF allowing the Americans to obtain their 22nd victory ahead of France and Australia, who were very consistent throughout the whole event.

In 2012, the Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations went back to Lommel, the same circuit where Team USA started to dominate the event beating the Belgians on home soil in 1981. During the 2012 edition Team USA struggled a lot in the deep sand of Lommel and they could only finish on the third step of the podium, breaking their impressive seventh winning streak. The German team was the most consistent and obtained their maiden Chamberlain Trophy, while the home team finished with a well-deserved second position.

2013's Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations in Teutschenthal, Germany, was probably one of the most anticipated events ever in the history of motocross. Heading into the event Team Germany would be defending the crown on their home turf while Team Belgium and USA would be lining up with hopes of redeeming themselves after a bitter defeat the previous year in Lommel, Belgium. While the pressure was laid heavily upon the local boys Team Germany's Max Nagl, Ken Roczen and Dennis Ullrich, a crash which resulted in injury for Dennis Ullrich soon blew the teams hopes of a podium finish leaving the race to be duked out by Team Belgium and Team USA. With the final waving of the chequered flag it was surprisingly Team Belgium who narrowly took the victory ahead of Team USA. While the biggest surprise was Italy's third place finish after their captain, seven-time FIM Motocross World Champion, Antonio Cairoli dominated both his races for the second year in a row.

Onto 2014, the Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations tackled the loamy circuit of Kegums, Latvia for the first time in history. With the base of the circuit being classed as a sandy, yet nothing like Lommel, the defending champions Team Belgium were the favourites. Of course Team USA had their devoted fans backing them too while the eventual winners Team France were the most criticised team going in with all three riders, Gautier Paulin, Steven Frossard and Dylan Ferrandis being Kawasaki riders and KTM's FIM MX2 World Champion Jordi Tixier being excluded.

Despite the harsh criticism, Team France couldn't be flawed on the weekend as Paulin rode amazing to dominate every race, which was earnestly backed up by the outstanding performances of teammates Frossard and Ferrandis. With Team France being victorious, Team Belgium also rode solid with their team of Jeremy Van Horebeek, Kevin Strijbos and Julien Lieber for second while Team USA made up of Ryan Dungey, Eli Tomac and Jeremy Martin were dropped back to the third step of the podium.

In 2015 history was made as Team France, Romain Febvre, Gautier Paulin and Marvin Musquin, lined up as the defending champions on home soil and won! It was the first time Team France have ever won back-to-back and only their third time ever winning the event which is known as the summit of the season. What made the 2015 edition of the Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations extra special was the fact it was held in Ernée, an entire decade after the memorable 2005 Motocross of Nations which took place on the very same track.

Team France were by far the hot favorites heading in with Romain Febvre being the reigning world champion and Gautier Paulin the runner up in the prestigious MXGP series. Marvin Musquin added to the lethalness of the French team as the runner up in the American motocross championship. The ones expected to threaten France's throne were, as always, the Americans, Team USA. Representing the stars and stripes in 2015, Justin Barcia, Jeremy Martin and Cooper Webb flew the flag high. All three riders put in solid performances with Barcia winning in MXGP while Martin and Webb backed him up with silver medals. It went down to the wire, but unfortunately no-one could match the speed of MXGP's gold plate holder, riding for France, Romain Febvre and also that of Marvin Musquin, both Frenchmen won their respective classes, Open and MX2, while Gautier Paulin also put in a solid ride for 4th in MXGP.

With the final waving of the checkered flag, Team France won by a narrow 2 points over Team USA, while Team Belgium, Jeremy Van Horebeek, Julien Lieber and Ken De Dycker, managed to round off the podium.

The Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations reached another level of epicness in 2015. The venue was packed with an awesome crowd unafraid of showing their enthusiasm and love for motocross. In 2016 we expected nothing less as the event took place in Maggiora, Italy, two whole decades since it played host to one of the greatest events in history, the 1986 Motocross of Nations. Italy provided a fabulous crowd, as it is known as one of the most motocross mad countries in the world.

The 2016 Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations brought the American team of Jason Anderson, Cooper Webb, and Alex Martin to compete against team France. Team France, whose goal was winning the Chamberlain Trophy for third consecutive year, was represented by Romain Febvre, Gautier Paulin, and Benoit Paturel. In the first race Glenn Coldenhoff of the Netherlands grabbed the holeshot but shuffled back after being passed by Italy's Antonio Cairoli. It was Romain Febvre making moves though, he charged forward passing several riders including Cairoli taking the race win for France, Strijbos, Webb, and Van Horebeek rounded out the top 5.

Race 2 was all team USA's Jason Anderson out front. Battles ensued behind him between Herlings, Paulin, and Tonus. Herlings finished in second after remounting his KTM due to a slide out, Paulin then made his way to the podium ahead of Tonus. Team USA was then in the points lead but immediately suffered a major blow when Anderson was landed on after crossing the finish.

The third and final race of the day had Herlings in the lead, and it was left to Cooper Webb for the United States; Webb was positioned well in the race but eventually fell and lost ground. The deciding moment wasn't until the final lap where France's Romain Febvre made his way around the Kawasaki of Searle. Herlings won the race but the late move from Febvre gave France the single point they needed to win in epic form, the Netherlands finished second followed by team USA.

In 2017 the Monster Energy FIM Motocross of Nations returned to the historic and epic venue of Matterley Basin, United Kingdom for the first time in 11 years. Among the top challengers for the Chamberlain Trophy would again be the winner of the last 3 consecutive Motocross of Nations, Team France who was compromised of Gautier Paulin, Romain Febvre, and Christophe Charlier. Looking to the steal the title as the best country in the world of motocross was the Netherlands Jeffrey Herlings, Glenn Coldenhoff and Brian Bogers and the UK's Max Anstie, Dean Wilson, and Tommy Searle.

As the gate dropped for race one the Netherlands Glenn Coldenhoff took the Fox holeshot but the hometown hero of Anstie was right there and took the lead for Great Britain. Behind Coldenhoff was France's Gautier Paulin who took over second when Coldenhoff made mistake over a jump. At the end of race 1 Anstie won ahead of a hard charging Tim Gajser and Gautier Paulin.

Prior to race 2 staring France was already in the lead of the nations classification ahead of the Netherlands as team Great Britain's Tommy Searle had bike issues in race 1. Race 2 was the Open and MX2 categories and the Netherlands and France were again strong with Herlings leading and Febvre in second. Herlings crashed on the same jump which his teammate, Coldenhoff, made a mistake but the "Bullet" shot back to the front of the field with a pass on Febvre. Herlings won the race ahead of Febvre and the USA's Zach Osborne.

The 3rd and final race would decide it all and the 3 time defending champs of France still led the way over the Netherlands. Anstie took the final holeshot but Febvre was right with him. Anstie later made a mistake on the same jump as Coldenhoff and Herlings did prior handing the lead over to Febvre. While Anstie rebounded and fought back to the lead Herlings did his best passing Febvre as well but it would be to little to late as Anstie won ahead of Herlings and Febvre. When the scores were tallied it was clear that France was the victor with 10 point less than the Netherlands who would again have to settle for 2nd while the home team, Great Britain, returned to the podium for the first time in 20 years!

Throughout the years this event, whose English name – Motocross of Nations – was officially adopted in 2003, has become the peak of not only the FIM Motocross World Championship season but motocross seasons across the globe. Brace yourself for 2018, it's bound to reach yet another level of racing!

KIARA FONTANESI 5-TIME WOMEN'S MOTOCROSS WORLD CHAMPION

One of the most recognized riders in women's motocross, Kiara Fontanesi, is now the most successful in the history of FIM Women's Motocross, having 5 FIM WMX titles to her name Kiara is an idol to many.

Kiara Fontanesi was born and raised in Parma, Italy, where she started riding at a very young age. Kiara took after her brother who ripped around on a mini-bike. The young gymnast one ride later was hooked and ready to race.

In 2009 Kiara, at the age of 15, decided it was time to take on the world as she entered the FIM Women's Motocross World Championship. While she didn't see success early, a season of training and determination worked in her favor as she came out swinging at the final round of the 2009 WMX championship in Lierop, The Netherlands, winning the race!

One year later, in 2010, Kiara asserted herself as a permanent force to be reckoned with as she pulled off second over all at the season opener in Bulgaria and then backed up the result up with a series of podium finishes and a couple of race wins finishing fourth in the overall championship standings.

In 2011, Kiara continued to improve which resulted in several strong races and finishes in the 2011 WMX World Championship. After the season of bar to bar racing and impressive results, Kiara settled for second behind the WMX champion Stephanie Laier.

2012 was a coming of age for Kiara, after coming so close to the title in 2011, the eighteen year-old was on a mission to accomplish her life long dream of becoming World Champion. Not only did she do just that, she blew away the competition and wrapped up the championship one round early in Matterley Basin, Great Britain.

World domination had been achieved, but at nineteen years old one world title wasn't enough and Kiara went on to claim her second consecutive WMX world title in similar style. After two years of dominance in women's motocross, Kiara was finally challenged. Although the competition was very stiff in 2014, Kiara still managed to rise above and claimed her third FIM WMX title.

In 2015 the battle for WMX supremacy was a battle between Kiara and 2008 WMX world champion Livia Lancelot, if it wasn't Livia winning the round it was Kiara and vice versa. Both riders took five race wins each, but it was Kiara who took the most overall wins, three to Livia's two.

Heading into the sixth and final round at the circuit of Loket in the Czech Republic only two points separated the protagonists in what was set to be a tense match up for the 2015 WMX crown. Livia ended up seizing her engine on the sighting lap of the final race, which meant Kiara was able to wrap up the FIM Women's Motocross World Championship, for the fourth time in row.

In 2016 the competition continued to strengthen and Kiara made it difficult to contend for the championship as she had three scoreless second races during the season. Kiara finished 4th in the championship 88 points behind the champion Livia Lancelot.

2017 was a testing year for the women as they faced varied conditions through out the 6 race season and coming into the final round at Pays de Montbéliard, France, only 5 points separated the top 4 women. Anything was possible as Kiara came into the French race 4th in the championship standings. While the other riders struggled to have 2 strong race results Kiara scored a first and a 3rd giving her one more point to claim her 5th World title over runner up Livia Lancelot!

MORGAN LESIARDO
2017 EMX250 CHAMPION

The EMX250 class is always one of the most competitive of any of the European cham-pionships and in 2017 the same was true. Hundreds of riders try to qualify for the 40 man gate at any given stop of the season. The most impressive rider in 2017 experi-enced a series of ups and downs before claiming that title and that is what makes it so impressive. As the famous Rocky Balboa quote states, "It ain't about how hard you hit. It's about how hard you can get hit and keep moving forward. How much you can take and keep moving forward. That's how winning is done!" and in the 2017 EMX250 Class the 18 year old, Italian, Morgan Lesiardo was the one doing the winning.

Born in Cantù, Italy the 2017 EMX 250 champion has 2 European Supercross titles to his name and in 2015 he was part of Team Italy when they won the MXoEN taking place in Pietramurata, Trentino.

When the 2017 started Lesiardo decided to race the season opener at Trentino in a spur of the moment decision on his privateer KTM. Lesiardo who had no intentions of racing decided that he might as well take a chance and sign up, to his surprise doing so resulted in him taking the first overall victory of the season along the points lead.

When the series moved onto the MXGP of Europe in Valkenswaard Lesiardo decide to follow seeing his Italian success which he would back up when he took third overall. With the impressive results continuing Lesiardo decided to extend his season into Latvia where he then was offered a factory ride with the Monster Energy Kawasaki MX2 Team.

While it was the dream deal the transition was rough for Lesiardo when at first when he dropped to a 5th place finish in France and then dealt another blow when he scored a 10th in Russia. The young Italian was however determined to fight his way back to the top of the standings and when the series came to his home country, at the Fita Profes-sional FULLBACK MXGP of Lombardia, he once again found his flow and took the overall victory emphatically.

Following his win in Lombardia Lesiardo again faced struggles with another tenth place overall, this time coming at the MXGP of Portugal. While Lesiardo struggled Simone Furlotti took over the points lead and Tristian Charboneau won Portugal along with Swit-zerland one week later. Lesiardo however would regain the points lead with his runner up Swiss finish. Into the final round of the season in Pay de Montbéliard, Lesiardo only real title challenger, Furlotti was injured and unable to race. Lesiardo took home a top ten finish at last round scoring his first ever EMX250 Title.

Lesiardo's ability to adapt to a completely new bike and find a way back into the cham-pionship fight after losing the red plate is in its own quite impressive, not to mention winning possibly the most stacked class of the European championships.

For 2018 Morgan will again return to the familiar orange machine but this time around he will compete in the MX2 World Motocross Championship aboard a Marchetti Racing team KTM SX250-F.

BRIAN STRUBHART MOREAU
2017 EMX125 CHAMPION

The European 125cc Motocross Championship has served as the foundation for many of todays top MXGP and MX2 stars and rightfully so as the 2 stroke class is filled with young talent.

2017 was without exception as rising stars like Mikkel Haarup, Gianluca Facchetti, and Brian Strubhart Moreau battled it out for supremacy among many others. The 2017 championship took every one of the 9 rounds of racing to crown a champion. Rising to the top of the standings to take the title was Bud Racing Monster Energy's Brian Moreau.

The young French rider was born on January 29th, 2002 and has been riding since the tender age of 2 and a half years old on his first bike, a PW 50. Brian was introduced to the sport thanks to his fathers passion for riding motocross. Moreau followed in the footsteps of his father entering his first ever race in Pransac, France at 6 years old. From the first race Brian went on to compete in his first complete regional championship on a 65cc machine.

Achieving success didn't take long for the youngster as he became 65cc European Vice Champion and France Minivert 65 champion in 2012 then backed it up with the 85cc version of the French title in 2013.

During the 2014 and 2015 seasons Moreau remained on an 85 where he again had french success and placed 4th in the European 85cc championship. By 2016 Brian outgrew his 85 and made the decision to move to the bigger and more powerful 125cc A change that Moreau was eager to capitalize on after his 65 and 85 mini bike success.

The transition to the 125 went well for Brian who immediately felt comfortable on the bike. This comfort showed in his 2016 rookie season of the EMX125 class when he finished the year 9th overall.

In 2017 Brian was one of the most consistent which can be hard to come by with so many young and talented riders but for Moreau it was a key part of his championship success. From the season opener at Valkenswaard to the 8th and final round of Sweden Moreau reached the podium 7 times 3 of which were victories and 2 of those came via double race wins. On top of that the only time that he didn't reach the podium, the Fiat Professional FULLBACK MXGP of Lombardia , he still finished an impressive 4th.

Now heading into the 2018 season Moreau will try to keep both momentum and consistency on his side as he shifts to the Bud Racing four-stroke 250cc machine to contest the EMX250 championship.

BRAD ANDERSON
2017 EMX300 CHAMPION

The 2017 EMX300 Presented by FMF Racing championship was full of ac-tion from in the end one racer stood atop the rest in the standings. Crowned 2017 Champion at the MXGP of Switzerland Presented by iXS was Great Britain's Brad Anderson.

Anderson was born in Towlaw, England, in 1981. In his youth Brad started first with a pedal bike, riding BMX at age 4. For Anderson success came soon after when he became European BMX champion at age 6.

Even with his promising start in the world of BMX Anderson decided to go into motocross. In 2009 Brad would win the British championship and he did so again in 2011. From the UK Brad decided to go live in Australia with his wife for a year and race the Australian motocross championship. Finish-ing third in the championship his wife then became pregnant and the deci-sion to move back home to the UK was made.

Anderson has also rode for team Great Britain in the Motocross of Nations twice first at the American stop in Colorado where the team only miss the overall podium by a single point and also at St. John Angelia in France were the team would again place 4th.

Outside of motocross Brad stays true to his roots bicycling, playing golf, walking in the Lake District near his home and the occasional game of pok-er. Now a father Anderson also enjoys taking his son out on his bike.

This season was a fantastic one for Anderson and started off with a bang as he went 1-1 at the opening round in Tuetschenthal, Germany. Happy to come away with red plate at the first round Brad initially wasn't planning on racing in Russia.

Anderson "we weren't going to do Russia but the only way I could win the championship was to race Russia it was hard work but we got there in the end Tanel Leok took my bike over for me that was a big help."

A big help it definitely was as Anderson got a first and second during the muddy conditions of Russia giving him first over all again. The third round Italy was red hot and again was Anderson getting a second and a first to win another overall. Then in the sands of Lommel he had another first and then second in race 2 giving him second overall after a swapping result with first overall, GL12 Racing's Mike Kras. At the final round in Switzerland Brad managed a 3rd after a bad start and a fall in race 1 then finished the last race with a win and took the championship 44 clear of his main title competitor Mike Kras.

Brad couldn't have been happier with his 2017 season saying, "I'm over the moon to have been on the box at every round and stayed consistent, I'm hoping to do the same again next year thanks to Team Verde Sports and RJS Builders."

ANDREA ADAMO

The Honda EMX150 Championship provides a great opportunity for young and skilled riders from around the world to come and race at a premier level where they can show their talent to potential sponsor and teams. All of which is made part by Honda Racing who not only provides equipment and the possibility to race but also helps get riders to the various stops on the calendar.

Taking full advantage of this opportunity in 2017 was the young Italian, Andrea Adamo. Adamo was born August 22nd 2003 in Castenaso, Italy and only 3 years later he hopped on his first motorcycle a Chinese built 50cc machine.

For the Adamo family motorcycles were in the blood as Andrea's father has ridden street bikes all his life. For Andrea the passion was in the dirt and as a 3 year old he is remembered saying, "I want a moto to jump!" and ever since he has remained focused on motocross.

2014 would be where Andrea would first see noteworthy success as he became the Italian Motocross Junior 85 Champion and in 2015 he compete d in both the Italian 85 championship where he finished 3rd overall and the Honda EMX 150 Championship. Adamo's first year on the 150 was a learning year as it was much different then the 2 strokes he was used to, even so he finished 13th for the season.

In 2016 he improved his skills and not only won the Italian Junior championship in the Senior 85 class but reached as high as 3rd in the 150 European Championship before getting injured.

In 2017 Andrea Adamo proved that he was ready to take full advantage of the Honda program after again claiming an Italian championship Adamo went on to win three of the five Honda 150 championship rounds and taking 2nd and 5th in the other two stops. These strong results propelled Adamo to claim the title of Honda 150 European champion ahead of the consistent Adam Nordstrom Graaf by 7 points.
